Marc counsels private investment fund managers with respect to a broad range of fund formation and compliance matters.

His practice focuses on advising managers of hedge funds, private equity funds, and other pooled investment vehicles in connection with their structuring, formation, and ongoing operational needs, including with respect to drafting and negotiating the full suite of organizational and offering documents, side letters, and service provider agreements. Marc typically serves as the day-to-day primary client contact on the fund formation matters in which he is involved.

He also regularly counsels investment managers on compliance with related regulations and other supervisory issues.

Marc remains active with his alma maters by serving on the leadership council at both Syracuse University and the Duke Law Alumni Club of New York.
