Robert is a business tax lawyer who advises clients on the international, federal, and state and local aspects of business transactions. His extensive practice focuses primarily on mergers and acquisitions, capital markets transactions, private equity investments, investment fund formations, restructurings, and bankruptcies.

During law school, Robert interned at the global accounting network BDO USA, where he performed legal research and analysis of various international tax issues and completed tax disclosures for foreign operations under the supervision of International Tax Services professionals. He also served as a judicial intern for the Hon. Christine M. Nugent in the Tax Court of New Jersey. While at Fordham University School of Law, he served as a legal research assistant for the school's Federal Tax Clinic, which assists nonprofits and low-income clients.

Robert is committed to guiding his clients through complex and critical tax matters. He works diligently to fully understand his clients' businesses and the various tax implications that impact their operations.
