Revel is a member of the Corporate practice group, where he focuses on transactional matters such as mergers, acquisitions, and acquisition financings. He is a former summer associate of the firm.

While in law school, Revel was an extern with the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) in New York City, where he served in the agency's Office of Fraud Detection & Market Intelligence. At FINRA, he drafted recommendations to open investigations into registered representatives of broker-dealers in instances where it appeared they had violated either FINRA rules or federal securities laws.

He also interned at the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of New York, Civil Division.

Prior to his legal career, Revel was a language instructor in Bratislava, Slovakia; owned and managed a small business in Roswell, New Mexico; worked for multinational corporations and at the Belgian Embassy; and conducted televised interviews for FashionTV.

He is proficient in Spanish and conversational in Slovak.
